NORWAY AND VICINITY.

A Terrible Accident.

Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Williams of Auburn started for their summer camp at Androscoggin lake in Wayne, Friday. When going up Bishop's hill at Curtis Corner in Leeds, that was steep and sandy, the power of the machine was not strong enough and it began to back down the hill. Dr. Williams tried to guide the car into the embankment but instead ran it into a deep ditch and overturned the car. The machine turned over, pinning Dr. and Mrs. Williams beneath. When they had lain there about half an hour they were discovered by a little girl who summoned help. Both were terribly crushed and bruised and Mrs. Williams lived only about 20 minutes after she had been moved to a house nearby. It is thought the doctor may recover. The doctor is well known in Norway as he frequently has patients here, or is called here in consultation.

Patch Mountain.

Lyman S. Herrick, who has been working for O. L. Peabody, was to have a week for vacation, so Monday morning he started to walk to Norway, a distance of twelve miles. He stayed there Monday night, then started back for Patch Mountain. He told some of his friends that he wanted to go a hunting in the afternoon. He arrived on the mountain about noon and taking a rifle he started out for a deer, telling his friends to be ready for some deer meat. He went to a place well known to him. He lay down in the warm sun and went to sleep. As the sun went down he awoke from his sleep, walked about twenty rods, looked up and saw three deer coming toward him. He at once opened fire on them, two of them continuing to come his way, he still firing at the two. It was his good luck to get the two deer. As the law would not let him kill but two he didn't try to hunt for any more deer but went back to work for Mr. Peabody with but three days' vacation.

Daughters of Rebekah.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows was the first secret organization in the United States to recognize the equality of the sexes, when in 1850, a representative introduced a resolution in the Sovereign Grand Lodge for the purpose of creating a degree to be conferred upon the wives and daughters of members of the order. The matter was referred to a committee of which the late Schuyler Colfax of Indiana, afterwards vice-president of the United States, was chairman. Colfax composed a degree which he submitted to the Grand body in 1851, which was adopted and named "Daughters of Rebekah," which about 15 years ago was changed to the Rebekah degree. No action of the Grand body was more fruitful in results than the creation of this degree which has now become one of the leading factors in the workings of American Odd Fellowship. There are now in the United States and Canada over 550,000 members in Rebekah lodges.

In Maine there are 127 Rebekah lodges with 20,000 members, it being in fact one of the best and most energetic branches of the order. The Rebekah assembly, which to the Rebekah lodges compares with the Grand lodge of the subordinates, has largely the control of the Rebekah lodges. The president of the assembly is the special deputy of the grand master, her duty being to assist him in the institution of Rebekah lodges and to superintend the work of the degree throughout the State. The ladies who have been elected president of the assembly have been some of the most talented women to be found within the borders of the State.

A Good Stomach.

Means Good Health, Cheerfulness, Ambition, Perseverance and Success.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia, or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls, and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without pepsin or other artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

Frank Kimball is the agent for Mi-o-na in Norway and he says to every reader of this paper: "I have known many whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back."

The price is only 50 cents a large box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

"I can't say enough for Mi-o-na tablets; they have done more for me in one week than all the doctors have for the two years I have been under their care, and I will do all I can to recommend it to my friends." You can also use my name in your ad, if you like, for Mi-o-na is better than gold to me. I am like a new man, and am able to work once more for the first time in over a year."

The Milk Question.

Large quantities of milk are shipped down the Grand Trunk to Portland. The milk producers of this vicinity and the milk dealers of Portland have been having a difference of opinion as to the price to be paid for future deliveries.

There have been numerous meetings of the Farmers' Protective Association, to which most of the milk producers belong, also numerous conferences between representatives of the association and the Portland dealers to arrange prices. A demand was made by the farmers several months ago that the price of milk be made 35¢ a can in summer and 45¢ in winter; but this demand was rejected. The farmers then offered to make the winter price 45¢ but to no avail. An offer was then made to make the price 40¢ per can the year round. This offer was also rejected. Finally the farmers issued an ultimatum, fixing the price at 35¢ per can during 4 months in summer, and 45¢ a can for the remaining 8 months, and if this offer was not accepted all contracts would terminate on Saturday evening, Oct. 3d, and that after that date Portland would be dry so far as milk shipped over the Grand Trunk was concerned.

At first, the dealers of Portland declared that they could not pay such a price for milk; that it meant an advance in price to the consumer, which was something the latter would not stand; but when the supply threatened to be shut off, they changed their minds and made a return offer of 40¢ a can the year round.

A Visit to Oxford County.

A hymn writer has said, "I've reached the land of corn and wine." I haven't done that, but it has been my privilege this season to reach the land of corn and potatoes and had I gone directly from one extreme to the other I should have traveled nearly 450 miles, for Aroostook county is the land of potatoes and Fryburg in Oxford county, the land of corn.

Fryburg is 50 miles from Portland on the Mountain Division of the Maine Central, about 190 miles from Dover to the upper border of Aroostook county. The village is a beautiful place but has suffered considerably from fire, the large Oxford House and several fine dwellings having burned in 1906. Although the hotel and many of the dwellings have not been rebuilt, the greatest loss to the beauty of the village was the destruction of numerous magnificent elms which cannot be replaced for many generations. Several hundred dollars was paid a specialist who said he could save some that were scorched, but he failed.

There are many beautiful homes in the village, one being the summer home of Dr. S. C. Gordon, the well known Portland physician and surgeon, who was born in Fryburg and still takes great interest in his native place.

The friends who I visited live eight miles from the village so I had opportunity to see considerable of the town and it is one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. The land is so fertile that the farms need not be large, consequently the farm buildings are near together and they are in New Brunswick and other parts of Canada. There are a great many shade trees throughout the town, elms, maples, pines, etc., which add greatly to its beauty.

When Fryburg was first settled the Saco river was 30 miles long within its borders, and as the river overflowed its banks during the high water the greater part of the town could not be occupied. To remedy this a canal was dug early in the last century between two bends in the river with the result that the river is now but 24 miles long within the town and a great amount of valuable land was reclaimed.

Although the result of the canal was very satisfactory, I was told that it had been dug at a different place 3,000 acres of land that is now worthless would also have been reclaimed. At one time the width of three planks would cover the canal but the river has washed the banks away until now a bridge 175 feet long is required to cross it at this point. It is evident that much of the town was once the bed of a lake which became filled by wash from higher land. An old resident told me that when digging a well a large log was found several feet below the surface, and some distance below that, brands of a campfire, which would indicate that the filling in was a long process. Some of the farms are underlaid with water which maintains the same level as the water in the river.

I have already said that the soil of Fryburg is very fertile. It is also natural corn land and that is made the leading crop by the farmers and is as much in evidence as potatoes are in Aroostook county. As I went through the town I could see sweet corn on all sides and in some places growing to the road as I saw potatoes growing in Aroostook county. The farmers are uniformly prosperous, and handsome and extensive sets of farm buildings are numerous. The farms not only produce large crops of corn but of hay, grain and potatoes.

The old bed of the Saco is encountered frequently and still contains a little water in many places. Its course is marked by elms and willows, the former being large and handsome.

Fryburg is in a pine region. A large amount has been cut but a great deal still remains. Since the timber has become so valuable the pines are being cared for and many groves are seen with the trees carefully trimmed.

One of the historic places in Fryburg is Lovewell's Pond near which, Captain Lovewell with 33 soldiers met and defeated a body of Indians said to have numbered 80, commanded by Chief Pangus. It was a fierce battle and but nine soldiers escaped death or wounds and among the killed was Captain Lovewell. A handsome bronze tablet has been placed on a boulder to mark the spot and bears the names of the soldiers who were killed or died from their wounds.

Near the pond is a bluff of ledge called Jockey Cap. Why it was given that name I did not learn but probably because of its resemblance to a jockey's cap. A path around the side of the rock through the trees enables one to reach its top from which Fryburg village and the surrounding country, including Lovewell's Pond, can be seen. It is a beautiful view and well worth the climb.

I could not find from reading or inquiring how high Jockey Cap is. As I stood at the foot I thought it was 50 ft. and the friend with me thought it was 200. As we looked at it from a different spot I thought it was higher than my estimate and he not so high as his.

A legend connected with the hill says that an Indian girl watched the fight at the pond, from its top and when she saw her lover killed she jumped off and killed herself.

One thing in relation to Fryburg that I have not mentioned is the beautiful mountain scenery. A view can be had of a long range of mountains in Maine and New Hampshire and when conditions are favorable the White Mountains can be seen.

Fryburg Academy stands high among the schools in western Maine. Near the village is a fine trusting park with all buildings necessary for successful fairs. There is also a camp ground, where but a few years since Chautauque assemblies were held.

The horse railway running between the village and the campground is one of the few remaining in the United States and so far as I know is the only one. The road is operated but a short time during the summer, only long enough to keep its charter alive. Some day the charter may be sold to an electric road.

Besides the visit to Lovewell's Pond and Jockey Cap we made a pleasant trip to Kezar Lake. The foot of the lake is in Stow, less than three miles from where I stayed in Fryburg, but the greater part of it must be in Lovell. It is nine miles long but not very wide, much narrower as a whole than Sebago Lake. A few farms come down to the water but the banks are generally covered with trees—pine, gray birch, maples, etc. There are a great many cottages on the shores, some owned by local people and many by people living in other states. There are several handsome summer homes in Lovell Center owned by residents of other states.

When these people began to build cottages on the lake the natives objected because they thought the summer visitors would catch their fish. Now, however, they are glad to have them come for their patronage contributes largely to the prosperity of Lovell, both of farmers and merchants.

One of the fine looking farms in Lovell that we passed was the boyhood home of Judge George W. Stearns of Millinocket, land agent for the 'Great Northern Paper Company. The Stearnses have been among the leading families in Lovell for many years. Judge Stearns' father and another son still live on the farm.

Kezar river flows out of the lake into the Saco in North Fryburg. Charles river also flows into the Saco above the mouth of the former and so level is the land in that vicinity that in high water the current of the Saco, reinforced by the Charles, forces the water in the Kezar back into the lake.

During my visit to Oxford county I drove from Fryburg to Sweden, the town where my father was born. The road to Lovell village is plain enough but from there into Sweden, four or five miles, a stranger needs a chart and a compass. Much of the latter distance is over a sandy plain with roads going in every direction and only an occasional guideboard. A stranger will come to branch roads which fill him with dismay for he doesn't know which to take. It will make little difference, however, for one may be a short cut around a hill. A little later he will again come to two roads where he will reach a decision after some anxiety only to find that they come together a few rods on.

This multiplicity of roads comes from the ease with which they can be made, and there are cut-offs and sidetracks just as we have winter roads here. All this is thorough pine growth and much fine timber is still standing.

Sweden contains many good farms but the population is steadily growing smaller for although it is but seven miles to Bridgton and a railroad, church and school privileges are so lacking that families move away and no new ones come in. I visited the farm where one of my uncles lived and became well off although he brought up a large family. The buildings are on a hill from which the view is beyond my power of description, as mountains can be seen on all sides, but although there is a good brick house and other buildings they are unoccupied.

A little cemetery not far away recalled to my mind one of the many home tragedies of the Civil war for it contained the graves of the uncle whom I have mentioned and two of his sons, one 21 and the other 25 years old, who died in hospitals. During the sickness of one of the boys his father went to Washington to care for him. The father was a strong, able bodied man but he tried to do too much in the hospital and when he left it after the death of his son he was broken in body and mind and never recovered although he lived several years. Another soldier, cousin, a boy, is also buried in this cemetery.

Sweden was a loyal town, for notwithstanding its population was but 725 in 1900 it furnished 70 soldiers during the war, almost a tenth of its inhabitants.

The town contains a great quantity of valuable pine timber land. Within a few years several farmers found that they were well off far beyond their expectations because of their timber. Although the people in the town are deprived of many privileges they have the telephone and the R. F. D. and also have a prosperous Grange so that they seem to enjoy life.

This is the way Editor L. P. Evans of the Piscataquis County Observer tells of his summer trip to our county.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Do not suffer longer with rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache, or any other ache, or pain, when you can buy a large-sized bottle of Neuralgie Anodyne for 25c with the agreement that it costs nothing unless it cures.

The Church Fair.
The Ladies Benefit Association held the first fair Thursday evening of last week. It was in every sense of the word a distinct success from every point of view. The ladies deserve unstinting praise for their efforts and the results accomplished. When it is realized in a small community like ours they cleared over $800 one cannot deny them great credit.

Their booths were made in the hall devoted to the display and sale of quilts, aprons, handkerchiefs and fancy work. Supper was served down stairs from six to eight. At the latter hour the Lonelyville Old Maids Club, a ludicrous comedy in one act, with a cast of thirteen female and two male characters, was produced. It made a decided hit with the audience, the actors frequently being interrupted in their lines by loud and long continued applause.

Just before the play, the winners were announced of the various prizes. Geo. Cole was the happy possessor of ticket No. 49 that drew the silk quilt. Mrs. Newell Swan guessed the nearest number of beans in a jar and drew the worsted quilt. In the doll contest in which four little girls were engaged Vio E. E. Maxfield secured the prize, she having secured the largest amount of money, $5.83.

We nearly forgot to mention the walking grab bag in the person of F. J. Cole disguised as an old woman. For a little while times were lively in his vicinity as each tried to get a prize from the capacious pockets of the old dame.

We understand that with the money secured at the fair and amount previously raised that work will begin on the church repairs in a few days.

C. G. French of North Norway visited in town, Sunday.

Allan Cole has a young coon that is already quite tame.

For the Good of the Fire Company.
During the past year a good fire company, for the protection of our village, was organized. A hose was purchased to attach the steam pump at the Paris Mfg. Co's mill, a good chemical engine was bought, and a number of other supplies, such as rubber suits for the hosemen, a truck for ladders, etc., and it is for these that the people are interested to give an entertainment for their benefit.

A supper will be served from 5.30 to 7.30 at the Grange hall. The Grange's kindly offer of their hall was gladly accepted. The supper will consist of baked beans, cold meats, salads, pastry and coffee. In the evening a first-class entertainment will be given. The popular comedy, "The Village Postoffice" will be played by some of the best local talent, the entire cast including over forty characters.
